The Oakland County Water Resources Commissioner’s Office and POW are organizing the 2024 Regional Stormwater Summit to be held Friday, October 4, at Lawrence Technological University. Topics will include green infrastructure and other sustainability practices, sustainability through the lens of environmental justice, funding and implementation mechanisms, legislative updates, water from a cultural point of view, non-profit, university, and municipal project reviews, and an in-depth look at climate change from a local meteorologist. Water Resources Commissioners, Drain and Public Works Commissioners, county, city, township, and village officials, watershed council members, students, environmentalists, and other interested stakeholders, along with engineering and industry professionals are invited. The summit is a collaboration of the WRC, LTU and Pure Oakland Water.
